Something's not right

The Home Office has joined forces with charities including Childline, Barnardo's and The Children's Society to launch a new campaign to protect victims of child abuse. The month-long campaign, 'Something's Not Right', encourages young people to recognise different forms of abuse, including sexual and physical abuse, report it and receive help. The campaign will see animated adverts aimed at secondary school pupils aged 13 and over, running across Instagram, Snapchat and Facebook. Young people will be directed to a dedicated page on the Childline website where they can access information and seek support. The campaign has been introduced in response to evidence that suggested young people faced a greater risk of sexual abuse, criminal exploitation and domestic abuse due to the impact of coronavirus (COVID-19).

IMPORTANT NOTICE

If you arrive at school after the gate has closed can you please ensure that you walk your child up the pedestrian path. Please do not allow your child to go by themselves as they will come out onto the school car park.

Respond

Questions for reflection and discussion:

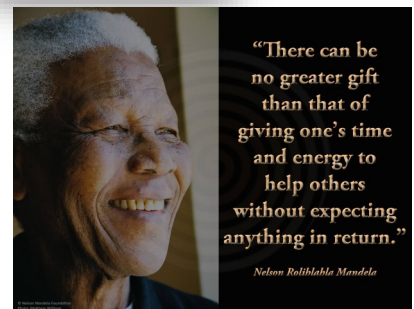

- Does it matter how we treat other people? Why?
- What about people we don't know yet or who are different from us?
- How can we help people who need it?

Go Forth

God of all, show us how to answer your call so we may see your kingdom - a place where no one is hungry, thirsty, or alone - here on earth. Amen.

- A built-in QR scanner lets you check in to venues quickly and easily
- You can check your symptoms in the app and if they suggest you may have coronavirus, the app is an easy way to get tested
- Any data shared with the app is held on your phone
- Nobody will know who or where you are. You can delete the app and all data at any time
