Mrs Reilly: SENCo

Special Educational Needs and Disability- SEND/SEN

Sometimes our children require additional or different support to that of their peers. When this happens school will use a graduated approach to implement support, which is overseen by Mrs Reilly.

Most of the time we can use high quality teaching approaches to help your child, but on other occasions it may require something more than this for example an intervention, additional or specialised resources or even specialist support from an outreach service like seedlings, speech and language or an educational psychologist.

When a child is receiving additional or different support from school, they will be added to the SEND register and you will receive learning plans before parents evening, showing the child’s targets they are working towards and what extra provisions they are receiving from school to support them.

I think my child may require a diagnosis

While not all children on the SEND register will require a diagnosis, some may and Mrs Reilly will support you to get the necessary assessments to get you the help you require for your child.

If you are worried or need a little extra help:

- Speak to the class teacher and share your concerns:
 - They will share what they see in class
 - Take some additional information from you around your concerns
- You may be directed to meet with Mrs Reilly who can support with:
 - Specialist support, advice
 - Request assessments for external services: OT, Speech and Language, School Nurse etc.
 - Signposting to other external providers
 - Seek parental support for you
 - Help with issues such as toileting, independence, diet, behaviour, communication, social interactions etc.
